ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, TERS, Australia, March 1.—Today's Allied communique declared Japanese strength was being rapidly reinforced in the arc of islands north of Australia, from Timor, in the Dutch East Indies, to the northern Solomon, and observers believed that Japan was preparing for a major military effort.

It was the first public intimation from military authority that despite Allied victories in Papua, New Guinea and in the Solomon, Australia still remains in danger of direct attack.

The official announcement tended to confirm information that Japanese strength in the Pacific is now as great, or greater, than at any time since Pearl Harbor. It appeared to substantiate the delegation will urge the Dominion government to sponsor a bill in parliament with the proposed legislation taking the form of the Farmers' Creditors' Adjustment Act.

The bill contained provisions to amend the present law in the event of a direct conference held in the Dominion government, a prairie debt conference held there Saturday.

Hope Dwindles For 69 Miners Buried in Blast

BEAR CREEK, Mont., March 1.—(AP)—Hope dwindled yesterday for the safety of 69 miners imprisoned in a shaft of the Smith coal mine. Five men were known dead.

Twenty-nine hours after a blast ripped through the mine, fans continued to pour out to hamper rescue crews. No more than 50 rescuers, however, were treated as an emergency hospital at Bear Lodge, five miles away.

The times were clearing more rapidly and visibility was improving. This enabled workers to push their way into the tunnel, clearing up falls and expediting ventilation.

The dead included Dave Martin, a rope rider, and Isaac Martin, a track layer.

The bodies of the other three were located by rescue squads. Their names were withheld.

No New Taxes Are Imposed In Province for 1943-44: Low Sees $291,809 Deficit

Providing for appropriation of $1,000,000 to establish a post-war rehabilitation fund; instituting a "pay-as-you-go" principle in provincial financing, and including neither new taxes, nor increases of existing imposts, the Alberta budget for the fiscal year April 1, 1943 to March 31, 1944, was brought down in the legislature Monday by Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer.

Mr. Low's "pay-as-you-go" budget, the seventh he has tabled in the legislative assembly, forecasts a deficit of $291,809.58, with an estimated gross income estimated at $21,655,191.58. With supplementary votes, the total budget for the year is $24,720,611.58. The budget is comparable with last year's.

Increases totalling $859,116 are given to the department of agriculture, education, municipal affairs, public health, public works, treasury, lands and mines, to the executive council, and to public debt charges.

A grant of $10,000 to public welfare will provide the University of Alberta with an up-to-date blood plasma plant.

In his address, Mr. Low outlined comprehensive proposals for refunding the Alberta public debt. He brought forward figures which had been submitted to the last meeting of the Alberta Refunding Committee, and estimated that the last scheme submitted to the bondholders' representatives, would cost Alberta $28,587,000, plus an annual interest increase of $1,792,000.

These figures are indicative of the splendid efforts of Alberta producers to meet the wartime food program. The provincial treasurer told the house.

He said the total amount in issue from what will be realized by the individual producer, will be $1,000,000 in deliveries are removed.

The CARRY-OVER
The Canadian carry-over of wheat for 1942-43 was 421,000 bushels, and the estimated carry-over at the end of the present crop year, July 31, 1943 will be placed at 100,000 bushels.

What carry-over Canada has placed in Argentina, Australia and New Zealand at July 31 next. This represents three times the normal wheat carry-over.

This problem must be kept before the people, the house was told, where we consider the conditions in agriculture and the importance of that industry in the economic life of Alberta.

In discussing the sugar beet levy, Mr. Low said the levy of 10 per cent of the total marketed in all Canada.

Washington Hopes to Make War Prosperity in States Permanent

RECORD PROFITS

The profits of all American corporations before taxes were paid totalled at $3.3 billion in 1942. They stood at an estimated total of $4.0 billion. Even after corporations had paid taxes their profits totalled $1.9 billion in 1942. This was about the same as the 1939 level. Despite war taxes American business is making twice as much net as before the war.

At the same time, by a miracle of physical production, the production of the wage-earner and the farmer has increased enormously in terms of income. They are better off today, in their purchasing power, than ever before, better off than any citizens anywhere, at any time in history.

The average weekly earnings of all factory workers have increased 40 per cent since January, 1941, and to more than 40 per cent since September, 1939. Even after allowing for the increased cost of living, the purchasing power of the average industrial worker is still 36 per cent more than it was in 1939. The average farmer, according to James F. Byrnes, director of economic stabilization,

FARMERS IN CLOVER

The position of the farmer, Mr. Byrnes says, is equally favorable. Between 1939 and 1942 the average of farm production increased by 35 per cent and farm production of such crops as wheat, corn and soybeans, which farm prices rose an average of 71 per cent. After taking into the farm's share of the cost of production their total net income in 1942 stood at $1.5 billion. In 1941, a billion dollars below the inflationary peak of 1939. This does not mean that Americans are not suffering from the war. Their incomes are not suffering in recorded time but they cannot exchange a large part of their goods, because of the shortage of war goods, for the same amount of goods they used during the depths of the depression, but these available supplies will be spread more equitably than ever before.

PEOPLE MUST DECIDE

This is a physical fact and nothing more. But it is a fact that the war is over the American people must decide what they are going to do about their unprecedented income. It is to be allowed to drop to its old level? Are wages to slump, farm prices collapse, workers to be jobless? Or are they to be allowed to drop to a third of that figure in the last depression?

Speaking for the government, Mr. Byrnes says this is unthinkable. "The American industrial worker and his family," says Mr. Byrnes, "today enjoy the highest purchasing power that has ever existed in this or any other country. We must preserve and protect this purchasing power. It will continue the basis of our economic prosperity for the postwar period."

This is easy to say, but keeping industry operating at full blast after the war business has disappeared. It means keeping millions of men who never worked before. It means the maintenance of steel works as no workers ever received before. It means that those who must become the normal means of life. It means (when the factories can produce consumer goods instead of weapons) the longed-for age of abundance.

WAR MUST BE MAINTAINED

No war is very sure how this is to be accomplished. It is agreed that the national income must be maintained at $10 billion a year at least, 20 per cent higher than in 1939. If business cannot maintain it, alone, then the government will have to pump enough money to maintain it. At least during the period of post-war transition there will be government spending on a huge scale.

This, the government believes, is necessary not only for the United States but for the good of the whole world. If the nations drop, if the nations drop, if the nations drop, there will be no chance of reducing American tariffs and admitting more foreign goods.

If American business is depressed, Congress will never open it to foreign competition. Hence, the entire economic plan for the post-war world depends on prosperity in the United States.

Akhmedov was described as "one of the most eminent builders of the Soviet state."

Stettinius in Review of U.S. Lend-Lease Plan

By EDWARD V. ROBERTS

WASHINGTON, March 1.—(AP)—American Lend Lease Administrator Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., told the Senate foreign relations committee today that under the lend-lease program Great Britain and the United States have sent 5,600 planes, 6,200 tanks and 65,000 motor vehicles to Soviet Russia.

Testifying in behalf of a bill to extend the program for one year, Stettinius said that the lend-lease plan is a genuine pooling of the available resources of all of the United Nations.

He revealed that the United States is supplying 44 countries with lend-lease food and materials, and that "lend-lease in respect to food, equipment and resources of inestimable proportions to maintain the American armies on foreign soil."

FIRST WITNESS

The house foreign affairs committee approved a companion bill Saturday and it is scheduled to come up for house debate late this week. Stettinius was the first witness before the Senate committee. Up to Jan. 1, 1943, Stettinius said, the United Kingdom received $2,400,000,000 of lend-lease supplies, including 10 per cent of all the food and materials of the world. The United Kingdom received $1,300,000,000 of aid, including planes, tanks, trucks, ships, and other military equipment. The United Kingdom received 80,000,000 pounds of TNT and Toluol, 174,000,000 pounds of copper and brass, and 121,000 pounds of food, munitions and war materials.

Stettinius also mentioned the Middle and Far East aggregated $1,650,000,000, including those to Australia and New Zealand. The Soviet Union received 1,212,000 tons of food, munitions and war materials, including 40,000 tanks and 40,000 trucks.

"Lend-lease aid to China has been as great as the situation requires," he admitted. "Every one concerned with lend-lease aid to China is concerned with the problem of getting more goods from India into China. More planes are being made available and air-borne shipments into China are increasing."

Nevertheless, until more planes are available, the situation in China "will continue to be restricted," he added.

PURCHASES DWINDLING

The "lend-lease in return" program has resulted in total dollar purchases by the army dwindling to less than $25,000 a month. Stettinius said, pointing out that American troops in the last year spent about $250,000,000 a year and a half.

British goods transferred to the U.S. during seven months ending Oct. 1, 1942, totaled $1,000,000,000. Stettinius said, "The British have received 1,000,000,000 pounds of construction materials, standard hundred Spitfire fighters, 1,000,000 blankets, 2,000,000 sets of underwear, 4,000,000 pairs of wool socks and new hospital uniforms."

Despite their own shortage of supplies to the United States, Stettinius said, the British have received 1,000,000,000 pounds of food and 25,000,000 pounds of fruits and vegetables, and more than $5,000,000 of sugar.

New Zealand's contributions of food have resulted in that country suffering from shortages, he said.

Ration Banking Is Effective in Canada Today

MONTREAL, March 1.—(CP)—Ration coupon banking went into effect today in branches of the Chartered Bank throughout Canada.

L. B. Uwin, administrator of coupon banking for the War-time Prices and Trade Board, said yesterday that the new plan was designed to make it easier for wholesalers and producers of rationed commodities to effect their sales.

Gasoline rationing, however, is being handled in the system of ration coupon banking.

HOW SYSTEM WORKS

The system, announced two weeks ago, works as follows: The individual consumer is not concerned with the system.

The retailer will stick on gummed sheets provided him the coupons he receives from his customers. Depending on whether his turnover in food is large, medium or small, he will deposit these coupons in a "ration coupon bank account," exchange them for a "bank transfer voucher," or send them direct to his supplier with the order for the fresh stock of the commodity represented.

The large retailer, the wholesaler, manufacturer and other supplier dealing in rationed commodities will have a separate "ration coupon account" on the books of the Chartered Bank, which will be expressed in coupons instead of dollars.

In these accounts he will deposit all coupons, ration cheques and other ration documents received from his customers. When it is necessary for the retailer to order more of a rationed commodity, instead of having to send his supplier an invoice, he will simply draw a "ration coupon account" for the number of coupons his order represents.

In addition to those who sell rationed goods against the surrender of coupons there are the hotels, restaurants, hospitals and the like who serve meals which include rationed commodities. These concerns operate on a quota and are known as "quota users."

ON MONTHLY QUOTA

In the past they were given a monthly quota of tea, coffee, butter or sugar and were tried to the specific dealer with whom their name and quota were registered. The dealer had to keep track of the coupons issued by the quota user.

Under ration banking, the quota user gets his quota; it is set up in a ration account at his bank and he draws ration cheques against it.

Alberta Social Services Will Be Increased With Budget Appropriations

Picture Budget for the year was $2,627,000, with a 10 per cent increase over the previous year's figure.

Natural resources of Alberta yielded profits to the value of $1,441,000 in 1942, valued at $7,446,000. Thus the gains in production resulted in a substantial increase in the value of natural resources.

The oil alone was valued at $1,537,000, with 10,143,750 barrels produced. This is an increase of 254,647 barrels over figures for 1941.

Coal tonnage, highest ever mined in Alberta, 7,754,272 tons, with a value of $2,545,000, an increase in value of $1,200,000 (700,000 tons) over the previous year's total.

PROVINCIAL RECORD. Salt, valued at $160,000 in 1941, with 16,610 tons produced, valued at $2,179 tons in 1942, valued at $22,700 at the well-head. These figures also represent a new provincial record.

Timber operations increased by $3,300,000 over the production value of the previous year. Total value of production of timber operations was $7,684,235.

Mr. Low compared figures of 1937 and 1942. Natural resources production, stating a 100 per cent increase in value of production had been realized in the last year. In 1937, total value of the natural resources was $2,567,742, and in 1942, $5,055,644.

"The impact of the war has been of course affected the oil but these totals could not have been attained, unless government development of oil resources had been proceeding since the time," he said.

He added this increase was phenomenal, and had never occurred before in the history of the province.

An intensive search for new oil producing areas was under way, and increased recovery of heavy oil from the Vermilion field was practically assured during the present year. While development of oil resources from the Vermilion field at McMurray were retarded by a plant there, which had been reconstructed and again was in operation.

PICTURE BUDGET. Net funded and unfunded debt of Alberta as at March 31, 1942, total $1,454,018 at the end of the previous year, a decrease of $2,385,623.

This reduction included a decrease of $753,583 in the funded debt, which was accounted for by accretions to the sinking fund of $80,585, and sundry payments made on treasury bills paid by the Dominion government.

The remainder of the total reduction of $1,631,040 was accounted for by a decrease of $408,288 in savings bonds, and a decrease of $1,222,752, along with an increase in cash and debt of $2,318,094, which is deductible from the unfunded debt.

Total net guarantees of the province amount to $7,582,796 at March 31, 1942, compared to $6,850,000 at the previous year. The guarantees were in respect of the Dominion government, and of the Dominion government, and of the Dominion government, and of the Dominion government.

Ten Millions for Aid Allied Prisoners

Roper Urges Co-operation Of All Edmonton Citizens As Red Cross Drive Opens

"Any contact which the Canadian people can have with prisoners of war taken by the enemy is through the International Red Cross committee and the Canadian government knows that if any attempt were made to interfere with the voluntary method of raising funds this service would be stopped," Elmer E. Roper, M.L.A., president of the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Red Cross society, declared at a campaign workers' breakfast Monday.

To Los Angeles

The speech delivered by Mr. Roper marked the opening of the three weeks' campaign for funds by the society in which the minimum objective for the Dominion will be $100,000. At the breakfast the campaign workers were the guests of the Hudson's Bay company in the Empire room of the company's store.

First donation to the Red Cross 1943 campaign for funds was received early Monday morning and was for the amount of $1800, which was donated by the Superfund Shop under the direction of Mrs. J. C. McLaughlin.

Second donation was received just a few minutes after when the sum of $50 was received from the parents of an airman now a prisoner of war who has written many letters of appreciation for the Red Cross. Two other sons are serving in the air force.

In opening his address Mr. Roper said that the fourth year of the war it should not be necessary to do much more than to continue the drive for funds for the Red Cross is being conducted by the Red Cross in a most efficient manner.

RAISED VOLUNTARILY

The funds must be raised by voluntary subscription, Mr. Roper reminded his hearers and stated that he found that it is still not clear to some that the funds must be raised in this way and not otherwise.

Getting Around with Jack DeLong

Both amazing and far-reaching have been the changes wrought by the arrival of global aviation. Implications, social and otherwise, that were utterly unforeseen just a few years ago, except by the Billy Mitchell and a few other pioneer air enthusiasts have been emerging.

One of the really amazing results of the trend of modern aerial development is the sudden emergence in importance of the areas of the earth's surface. One example, these fairly large land areas have now been brought into the minds of most people.

Winter weather descended upon Edmonton over the week-end and after more than two weeks of springlike temperatures the thermometer tumbled down to reach a low of 14 below, early Monday morning. Last reading showed a steadily-rising thermometer that had reached two below zero.

First intimation of colder weather came early Sunday morning when a stiff wind accompanied by snow fell out of the north. By Sunday afternoon pools of water, which had begun to form, were frozen and a great deal for small hands.

Many young hopefuls could be seen testing out "stays" successively, and the short of it.

Forecast promises "partly cloudy and cold with light snowfalls or flurries."

Vatican "Definitely Out"

In Negotiations for Peace

Richard K. Massock was chief of the Associated Press Bureau in Rome from 1933 until the United States entered the war and he was interned. Not only is that the Vatican

The treaty pledges the Pope to renounce neutrality in political perpetual neutrality in political disputes between governments and to abstention from international congresses called to cope with them, unless his mediation is requested by both parties.

With that in mind, some observers say the Pope would welcome an invitation to mediate, particularly since he once headed Vatican diplomacy when, as Eugene Cardinal Pacelli, he was secretary of state. But the Casablanca conference requirement of "unconditional surrender" is recognized by the Vatican as precluding such a request.

Foreign diplomatic observers here were convinced the delay in his appearance and the departure of the German envoy were connected with an address on peace hopes and aims Clano had planned to deliver.

The best judgment among Vatican observers was that Archbishop Spellman's visit somehow was connected with the peace hopes of some factions in Italy

In one of the most daring and dramatic surgical operations of the war, an emergency appendectomy was performed on George M. Platter, 21, of Buffalo, N.Y., by an amateur surgeon aboard a submerged submarine in Jap-infested waters somewhere in the Pacific. About 22-year-old Thomas Moore, pharmacist's mate of Chino Valley, Ariz., initially probes for Platter's appendix in the first operation he ever attempted, while Richard Stegall, right, uses a bent kitchen spoon as a retractor. Other assisting crew members are Robert Danko, left background, and R. Detmers. Platter was up and about in eight days.

The Terrible Eye

By EDWIN RUTT

"The Terrible Eye" is indeed a remarkable invention. It can re-create and witness events during war back into ancient history. Inventor Joseph L. Hilly has tried, without success, to interest Henry L. Chamberlain, multi-millionaire candy, food, but not on even get to see him. Heavens, he has refused to live with him. Chamberlain's daughter, only to find that she is refused to see anyone with whom she plays to sleep.

CHAPTER VIII
HILLY frowned. "If last Father's wretched money I'm worrying about. It's just that Aunt Meg left me some that's to be all my own. Only I don't get it until next winter. When I'm 21. In the meantime, Father has control of it. And Aunt Meg's will reads that if father doesn't consider it wise to give me the money on my 21st birthday, he can hold out on me. Until I'm 30. If he wants to. Can you imagine such a dopey thing?"

"A very well-drawn document, that will," said Joseph.

"You mean to say so. But you see the spot it puts me in."

"Um. But just how dipping with this—this grease money you improve the situation. I don't see."

"Joseph, for a bright boy, you're dreadfully dumb. Nobody's to know about the money, you know. We'll get it over with Saturday night, under cover of the party father is giving. Then I'll fly back here and get it. I'll go to my flying. He's trying for a commission in the Army Air Corps, by the way."

"Listen, Hilly," said Joseph. "The thinking behind this is cock-eyed. I strongly suggest that, if you insist on marrying this girl, you wait until you collect your aunt's shekels."

"Um, um," said Hilly. "Chet Saxton is too attractive to be left around loose that long."

Hold Everything
"I'm not saying a word. Where do I find this weas—er—Mr. Saxton?"

"The lives in Larchville," Hilly said. "Hill probably be at the airport."

"Okay," said Joseph, and sighed. This was a fine state of affairs. Before he'd had opportunity to file himself at the feet of the world's Number One Girl, she'd converted him into a miserable go-between. In a way, she had effectively closed his lips. To prostitute himself now would make him look like a Grade A sap. No, he must stand by to deliver, in silence. Just then Mr. Joseph Logan had professed sympathy for the late Sidney Carter.

"When can you see him?" asked Hilly, a girl for details. Joseph stiffened the celebrated upper lip. "Tomorrow."

"Well, that's swell," said Hilly. "I'll wait here about 10 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and you can—er—report. Now I'd better go get father out of the maze."

The central figure in his mental gyrations had auburn hair and Mediterranean eyes. And she was engaged in kissing the knot. But, definitely, in a full handsome chap who leaned in downcast fashion against the wing of an airplane. Joseph Logan then sang for the evening seemed to be, "You Can't Stop Me From Dreaming."

From inside the converted barn here issued suddenly a hoarse chuckle. Joseph paid no attention. Instead he began conjuring up another dream.

But, very unexpectedly, something stepped from the shadows on the lawn.

It was a film something and it looked familiar. For a second Joseph stared, unbelievably. Then his heart leapt, like a pronged grampus.

"Hilly," he called softly. She stepped closer to the porch. "Is that you, Joseph?" Her voice was a judicious blend of rapture and skepticism.

Joseph recoiled. Her side in a bound that would have shamed a contumacious.

"Hilly," he cried. "This is swell. What are you doing here?" Wait! He held up a hand. "Don't tell me. I know."

Mr. Logan was an optimist. He was wont to string along with Pollyanna and look on the brighter side.

"You've come, Hilly," he explained gently, "because you've thought things over. And now you are how utterly impractical would be to marry a man who around in airplanes. And, believe me, you're right. That type never makes a good husband."

"Hilly," said Joseph, interrupted. "Wait!"

"You're perfectly wacky. I'm more in love with Chet than ever."

"Oh!" Joseph made a noise like a prickled balloon.

"In fact, I'm here on his behalf. Joseph folded his arms, aware that the world had become a flop again. "Proceded," he invited bleakly.

Before Hilly could do so a whole series of hoarse chuckles sounded from within, followed by a robust guffaw.

"Alta girl," said a voice, rich with appreciation. "Socks him again."

Hilly stared. "Joseph! What was that?"

"Nothing of importance," said Joseph. "Just Mahoney. He's the Roper of the Bahamas. On the Terrible Eye."

"Oh," said Hilly. That must be a marvelous machine. Well have to do something soon about breaking father with it. But right now—"

"Oh, Joseph, I'm so terribly worried."

When she looked up at him with so much appeal in her eyes, Joseph knew all over again that his life would never be complete without her. She was so truly beautiful, so ably meant for him. He felt warm inside, proud that she should come to him for help.

"I look all the will power, he had to stop him from lifting her lips to his own. He gulped. The words he uttered were barely whispered.

"I'm listening," said Joseph. (To Be Continued)

New Device for British Planes May Save Lives

LONDON, March 1.—(CP)—British aircraft are being fitted with a new device which may save the lives of wounded or temporarily incapacitated pilots.

For obvious reasons, precise details may not be given, but it consists of an ingenious type of automatic pilot which, by actuating the flying control surfaces of the machine, prevents it from crashing and brings it on to a level keel, pulling it out of a dive or recrafting any other violent manoeuvre.

The normal automatic pilot (George) functions only when the attitude of the aircraft is flying level. The new device works equally well no matter in what attitude the aircraft is flying.

It consists of a series of hydraulic servo-motors, and can be switched on or off by means of a ring attached to the control column. While the pilot is holding the stick the automatic pilot remains "off" position, but when his hands are removed it is switched on and brings the aircraft into a level position.
